

Recycling and Reusing, Whatever the Form, Is Just Sensible

Contributed by Sue Martin Mahar
Friday, 18 July 2008

As I have been pulled onto other projects, writing 'The Second Life® Business Builder ' for the American Management Association and Molaskeys-Pub.com , I still have a SensibleSue audience to please. That is why I have been recycling my favorite, though dated, SensibleSue articles. It occurred to me this morning, as I posted my link to the BlogHer group in SecondLife® , that old articles are new again, while I practice what I preach about recycling and reusing.

I have tons of great ideas for future SensibleSue articles. As soon as I can catch my breath in between publishing my first book, raising kids, observing the world, I will put fingertips to keyboard and revive my beloved SensibleSue.com, which started it all.